REGISTRANTS MUST NOTIFY OF ADDRESS CHANGES

During the past few weeks an increasing number of names of selective service registrants are reported for having failed to notify their local board of change of address or to complete and return questionnaires. Men who have registered should remember that this war and the selective service are serious matter and the little attention that is asked by the authorities if given as desired can save them much trouble. To the County's credit none have been reported hereabouts for some time.

BARTLETT FARM BUILDINGS THREATENED BY FIRE LOSS

Fire damage amounting to $25 or less was caused Tuesday at the farm home of Charles Bartlett in Hanover. The blaze was confined to a very small space on the roof of the large barn, but on account of the heavy smoke which filled the barn when first noticed it seemed likely that a considerable fire was in progress.

The Bethel and Rumford fire departments were called and both reached the scene, although the latter arrived after the fire was quenched. The Bethel crew had three streams on the blaze, drawing water from a nearby pond which was planned for fire protection, but the fire was held in check and no doubt would have been finally extinguished by the use of several small tank pumps and hand hose, manned by volunteers from a haying crew who were working there.

It is thought that the fire may have started from a spark from a portable forge which was in use some time before the fire was noticed.

GROUND SCHOOL AT GOULD THIS FALL

In cooperation with the United States office of education to make high school students "air minded," Gould Academy will have an aviation ground school course for older students this fall, according to Elwood F. Ireland, headmaster. Alfred J. Fortier of Farmington, teacher of physics and chemistry at Gould, who has just completed the Teacher Training in Aeronautics at the University of Colorado in Boulder, Colo., will teach the course.

The purpose of the aeronautics course is to develop appreciation of the growth of aviation and of the many and various fields of employment connected with aeronautics, and also to give a knowledge of the parts and principals upon which the industry is based.

Thirteen science teachers from eight states have been taking this teacher training course at the University of Colorado according to Fortier. He was the only one from the East who attended the lectures and worked in campus aeronautical laboratories and make observations at the Boulder airport. Science teachers are undertaking the teaching of this course to high school students, because of the mathematics and physics requirement that make-up the study of aeronautics. The specialized summer courses cover aerodynamics, meteorology and regulations.

While studying out West during the past six weeks, Fortier also had an opportunity to learn flying and to handle the plane while in the air. He hopes to get an airplane motor for Gould this fall, so the students may have actual work in the laboratory and may get to know the parts of an airplane motor.

Corp. Tech. James Bryant of Fort Jay, N. J., is spending a furlough with his mother, Mrs. Sadie Allen.

Jacob Immonen arrived home Monday night from Miami, Fla., for a short furlough before entering an aircraft school in Boston. He is with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lauri Immonen, of West Paris.

Gordon Verrill of the U. S. Navy spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Verrill, of West Paris. He has recently graduated from a radio school in Boston.

Sgt. Hartson W. Welch Jr. from Camp Shelby, Miss., is the guest of his mother, Mrs. Pearl Welch, at West Paris.

Pvt. Frank Curtis of Fort Monmouth, N. J., was at home at Greenwood City over the week-end and called on relatives and friends. He returned Monday.

A WEEK OF The WAR

Price Administrator Henderson announced that maximum gasoline prices in the rationed area of the 17 Eastern States and the District of Columbia will be reduced 2 1/2 cents a gallon beginning Aug. 6. He also announced reduction of 0.9 cents for kerosene, 1.1 cents for distillates and light heating oils, and 15 cents a barrel on residual fuel oils.

Commerce Secretary Jones reported the Defense Plant Corporation will finance a two-point program to convert existing steel dry-cargo barges into tank barges to transport oil, and to improve existing inland waterways. The Bureau of Mines estimated the national gasoline demand for July, August and September will be about 17 percent less than in the corresponding period last year, eliminating the necessity for a large winter accumulation of stocks.

Consumer Supply and Maximum Prices

President Roosevelt issued a statement that every user of fuel and heating oil on the east coast "should face realistically the fact that there can be no guarantee that he will get enough oil even to meet his minimum needs." Petroleum Coordinator Ickes asked all sellers of fuel an heating oils in the East to request their customers to convert oil burners to the use of coal or other available fuels. The Office of Solid Fuels Coordinator reported bituminous coal stocks in storage in the U. S. increased an estimated 5,850,000 tons in June, to a near all-time record. The Office said consumer stockpiles, however, continued insufficient to provide adequate protection against possible shortages during the fall and winter.

President Roosevelt told his press conference there are three reasons for the current meat shortage in the East and some mid-Western States: (1) It is the off season for beef. (2) Some people have a good deal more money with which to buy more and better cuts of meat. (3) This country has around 4,000,000 men under arms for whom meat supplies must be prepared months in advance. Mr. Roosevelt said the people will have to expect new shortages from time to time because that is part of the price of winning the war.

Rationing

The outlook for obtaining sugar supplies from the Caribbean has "taken a turn for the worse" because of submarine warfare and the amount of shipping diverted to war purposes, the OPA said. The Office asked sugar refiners in Louisiana and Texas not to ship to sugar markets in Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio until at least Sept. 1 because of a shortage in their home States. OPA said these restrictions will have to be continued if receipts from Cuba and Puerto Rico are below expectations.

War Bond Purchases

July sales of War Bonds totaled $900,000,000, second highest monthly amount on record and $250 million above June sales, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said. The highest monthly total was that of January when the amount was $1,080 million. Mr. Morgenthau said the August quota has been placed at $815 million. "Because of seasonal variations in income distribution, it would not be practicable to establish monthly quotas at a uniform figure of $1,000,000,000," he said.

Transportation

The Office of Defense Transportation took over allocation of all new buses and froze all integral-type buses in the hands of manufacturers. Under the new plan, the ODT will grant permission to buy new buses only when the purchasers sign an agreement giving ODT authority to transfer the buses for use elsewhere if transportation difficulties develop. ODT Director

Eastman asked Public Service Commissions of the States to make a nation-wide survey of local rail and bus passenger services to eliminate duplications. War Production Chairman Nelson said the WPB is studying the proposal of shipbuilder Henry Kaiser to build 5,000 large cargo planes in converted shipyards. The Maritime Commission reported U. S. shipyards broke all records in July as 71 new merchant vessels were put into service, making a total of 209 cargo vessels and tankers produced during the first seven months of this year.

The War Front

Lt. Gen. Stilwell's China headquarters reported U. S. airmen have broken the back of an elite force of Japanese bombers and fighters assembled for the purpose of driving them out of China. The climax was reached July 30, the communiqué said, when 17 Japanese bombers and new type Zero fighters were shot down. Gen. MacArthur's Australian headquarters announced Allied planes conducted raids on Japanese positions from Ambolna Island in the Netherlands East Indies to Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons. The Navy announced the sinking of four United Nations merchant vessels by enemy submarines.

The Armed Forces

The President signed a bill creating the Women's Auxiliary Reserve in the Navy, which will be made up of 1,000 commissioned officers and about 10,000 enlisted members. He also signed a bill to permit the CAA to train airplane mechanics in its Civilian Pilot Training Centers. The Army has asked for training of 31,000 mechanics. Selective Service Headquarters instructed SS boards to induct during August some men classified in 1-B with certain types of physical defects.

Safety Firsts

WAR has brought home the necessity of an "ounce of prevention." Here's hoping the new housekeeping habits we form will stick with us afterward. The following will save time, money and trouble.

Pull out plugs on electric heating appliances when you finish using them — it saves electricity. Tighten up loose electrical connections — they may cause radio interference and sluggish operation of lamps and appliances. Do not attach lamps and appliances to a lighting fixture by a dangling cord — it leads to overloaded circuits and may cause a fuse to "blow." Besides, you may hit the cord and knock over the appliance.

Never use a substitute for a fuse. Fuses are safety devices, and makeshifts are no protection. Before replacing a fuse, find out what the trouble is. Whether it's an overloaded circuit, defective wiring or short circuit, rectify the fault first, then replace the fuse. Always use the correct size.

Makeshift wiring is an expensive attempted economy. If you need a longer cord, let an electrician lengthen it for you. It's dangerous to try splicing it yourself. Don't run an extension cord under a rug, but if you must, be sure the cord is flat, not round. Never nail cords to wall or floor — it's safer to install extra outlets.

SUMMER SPORT SNAPSHOTS

For pictures which are fun to make, and which carry a real thrill, turn your camera on summer sports. You'll find it's easy to make pictures as fine as this.

SUMMER is always an exciting period. People are out playing golf, tennis, and badminton. They ride horseback, swim, go fishing and do many other things which make good picture subjects. So if you want good snapshot material, don't fail to consider summer sports.

For instance, just think of the possibilities around the beach or the old swimming hole. They range from pictures of people sunbathing or having a water fight, to first rate snaps of young folks diving or poised for a plunge—as in our illustration.

Stopping the action of summer sports is relatively simple. First make it a habit to stand back a little way—say ten or twelve feet—so you'll be able to keep fast moving subjects in focus and in the viewfinder. Second, use a fairly high shutter speed—at least 1/100th to 1/200th second—depending upon the rapidity of the action. Third, try to catch your subject at the peak of action, and most of your photographic problems will disappear.

Catching the subject at the peak of action means snapping your shutter at the moment when the action is literally at its best. Technically, you might say that action reaches a peak whenever it has progressed as far as it is going in one direction, and then pauses for a bare instant before the return begins.

In diving, that moment would come just as the diver reaches the top of his leap, and before he begins to descend toward the water. In tennis, there is an action peak at the instant the racket reaches the top of the serve, and another at the end of the follow through. Snap your pictures at moments such as those and you'll be able to record what appears to be very fast action with moderate shutter speeds.

Try summer sport photography this week. It's an exciting pastime.

PRICES AT A STANDSTILL

When John came home the other evening he found me "in a state." I'd been working all afternoon on our household accounts and the budget just wouldn't balance! Our grocery bill for July was $5.00 higher than it should have been, Junior's shoes had thrown the clothing fund all off, and there was Mary's unexpected visit to the dentist.

"Why don't they give you a raise?" I demanded when I'd told John my troubles. "How do they think we can make both ends meet with prices going up and war bonds to buy?"

"But I have had a raise," he reminded me.

"Yes, months and months ago," I replied. "Since then prices on practically everything have gone up still more!"

And if everybody in the country got a raise in wages, the way you want me to," he explained, then prices would have to go up again. After that there'd be a new cry for more raises and the inflation cycle would be started in earnest."

"You don't mean to tell me better wages have anything to do with inflation?" I asked him.

"Certainly they have. Wages are a large part of the cost of any article. When they go up, costs are bound to rise. I'd like another raise just as much as you'd like to have one. But if getting one would bring inflation any nearer, we'd soon be worse off than ever. Besides, we're still a little ahead of last year. My increase amounted to over 15% you remember, and all prices haven't gone up that much."

"Just try to buy food for this family and you'll think they have," I told him.

"I know, dear, but the fact is the over-all increase in prices from January, 1941, to May, 1942 amounted to only a little more than 15%."

"And what about wages as a whole?" I asked.

"I know the answer to that one too. Over 97% of the manufacturing industry have increased workers' wages more than 15%—some considerably more. So, you see, most of us are as well off as we were, in spite of the crisis we're going through. And I think it would be to our best interest, and to that of other wage earners, to see a ceiling put on wages right now."

"All right, John. You win, as usual," I told him. "I certainly don't want inflation either. So from now on I'll count it part of my war job not to waste a single thing and to buy still more carefully so that the 15% raise you already have will see us through the war, with prices at a standstill, too. I hope."

GASOLINE RATION

(from the office of Senator Ralph O. Nelson)

Now that the devastating effects of gasoline rationing upon the recreational business of Maine have been determined, it is also to appraise the responsibility. It is easy enough to say Hitler is to blame in the campaign upon our Atlantic coast. The Japanese in plunging war and diverting the tankers to other uses.

This oversimplifies the situation, however, since money was available in the amount of $100 million dollars four years ago to develop experimental types of boats to meet problems of character, and fifty million was made available two years ago for the construction of a fleet of small boats. It is true that the Japanese would in large measure be protected by our eastern seaboard boats, however, have not completed in spite of the time has elapsed. This indicates that the Congress is not responsible. Rather those in authority who failed to provide instrumentalities that were for our defense along the seaboard.

Hitler apparently knew about the vulnerability of the lines than we did ourselves moved to sever those arteries most damaging spot. The result was an enormous destruction of property.

In addition the administration has refused to follow the advice of both Mr. Donald Nelson and Leon Henderson in distributing sacrifice equally over the country. This means that tank cars are used to supply areas throughout the Middle West and the West which might otherwise in some degree in meeting problems here in the East, particularly in Maine, where the longest haul necessarily results in the largest number of cars.

While the rest of the country may consume unlimited quantities of gas and also rubber which one recognizes is one of the vital bottlenecks of the war.

GASOLINE RATIONING

(From the office of Senator Ralph O. Brewster)

Now that the devastating effects of gasoline rationing upon the recreational business of Maine has been determined, it is desirable also to appraise the responsibility. It is easy enough to say that Mr. Hitler is to blame in the U-boat campaign upon our Atlantic, or the Japanese in plunging us into war and diverting the tankers to other uses.

This oversimplifies the problem, however, since money was made available in the amount of fifteen million dollars four years ago to develop experimental types of small boats to meet problems of this very character, and fifty million dollars was made available two years ago for the construction of the necessary fleet of small boats which would in large measure be able to protect our eastern seaboard. These boats, however, have not yet been completed in spite of the time that has elapsed. This indicates clearly that the Congress is not primarily responsible. Rather those in authority who failed to provide the instrumentalities that were vital for our defense along the eastern seaboard.

Hitler apparently knew more about the vulnerability of our supply lines than we did ourselves and moved to sever those arteries at the most damaging spot. The result is an enormous destruction of values.

In addition the administration has refused to follow the advice of both Mr. Donald Nelson and Mr. Leon Henderson in distributing the sacrifice equally over the nation. This means that tank cars are being used to supply areas throughout the Middle West and the Far West which might otherwise help in some degree in meeting our problems here in the East, and particularly in Maine, where the longest haul necessarily requires the largest number of cars.

While the rest of the country may consume unlimited quantities of gas and also rubber which everyone recognizes is one of the most vital bottlenecks of the war, the eastern seaboard and New England in particular must go on short rations on gasoline and must conserve rubber for the benefit of the services and the rest of the country who are at present under no restriction.

This procedure cannot be justified under any possible circumstances but represents simply the reluctance of the administration to meet the problem realistically and fairly in interests of all alike.

As Maine continues to struggle with the problem of short rations of gasoline and of fuel oil through this coming winter it will be well to bear in mind the proper placing of the responsibility of our plight.

COASTAL PATROL

Governor Sewall brought the problem of protection of our coast lines rather forcibly home to Washington this past week in the proposal to the President that Maine would be glad to cooperate in the instituting of an adequate coastal patrol by air.

A far greater number of small boats and of airplanes is required to take care of the problem along our coast and it is believed a solution of this problem is being sought.

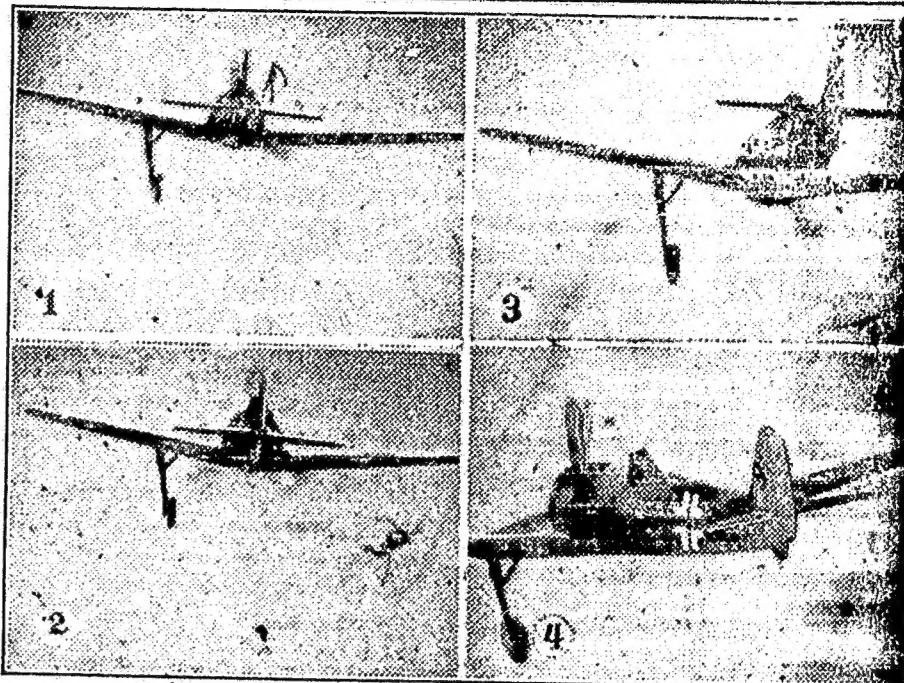

Aerial patrol has been operated very successfully in certain sections of the Atlantic coast line to the south of New England and there seems no reason why similar measures should not be equally effective along the Maine coastline.

Governor Sewall's letter has laid the situation very clearly before the Washington authorities regarding this matter to those concerned with the protection of our coastal trade.

The country is now becoming so extremely dissatisfied with the measures taken to date that far more vigorous measures seem likely in the immediate future and it is hoped that this will involve the supply of large numbers of small boats and of patrol planes to drive the menace of the submarine away from our shores. Certainly it is high time this was done when America finds itself almost blockaded along its own coasts by an enemy three thousand miles away.

All of this makes due allowance for the necessities of our Navy in the far flung supply lines of the Pacific and the Atlantic and only contemplates the use of smaller craft and smaller planes for the protection of our supply lines here at home.

ONE NAZI LESS

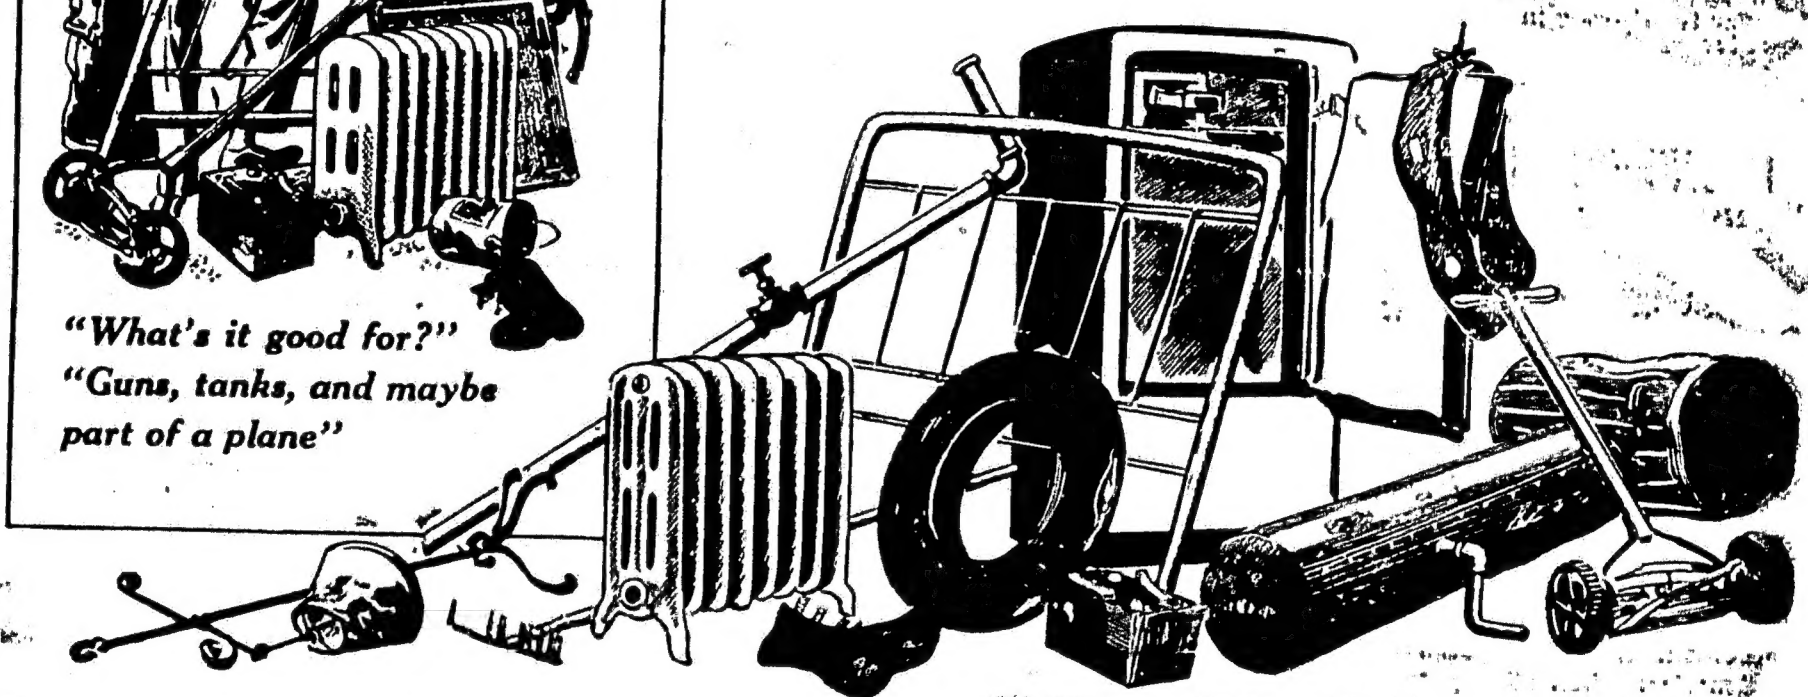

WHEN A SPITFIRE ATTACKED one of the Nazis' latest and fastest fighters (a FW.190) at 17,000 feet recently over France, its pilot, Sergeant Robson of New Zealand, saw the above remarkable picture sequence as it was photographed by his automatic camera: (1) the cockpit hood flew off, (2) the pilot's helmet flew out, (3) and (4) the enemy plane fell away with one wing down.

In the first five months of this year, these R.A.F. daylight fighters swept over enemy occupied country, destroyed the equivalent of 15 complete enemy fighter squadrons. This continual drain on Nazi air strength is complementary to the R.A.F.'s heavy night bombings of Nazi cities.

JUNK
needed for War

In the attics and cellars of homes, in garages, tool sheds, and on farms, is a lot of Junk which is doing no good where it is, but which is needed at once to help smash the Japs and Nazis.

Scrap iron and steel, for example. Old radiators, lengths of pipe, refrigerators, garbage pails, broken garden tools...

It may be rusty, old "scrap" to you, but it is actually refined steel, with most impurities removed—and can be quickly melted with new metal in the form of pig iron to produce highest quality steel for our war machines.

Even in peacetime our Nation relied on scrap to provide about 50% of the raw material for steel. Now production of steel has gone up, up, UP, until today America is turning out as much steel as all the rest of the world combined.

But unless at least 6,000,000 additional tons of scrap steel is uncovered promptly, the full rate of production cannot be attained or increased; the necessary tanks, guns, and ships cannot be produced.

The rubber situation is also critical. In spite of the recent rubber drive, there is a continuing need for large quantities of scrap rubber. Also for other waste materials and metals like brass, copper, zinc, lead, and tin.

America needs your active assistance in rounding up these materials. The Junk which you collect is bought by industry from scrap dealers at established, government-controlled prices.

Will you help?

First—collect all your waste material and pile it up.

Then—sell it to a Junk dealer, give it to a charity, take it yourself to the nearest collection point, or get in touch with your Local Salvage Committee.

If you live on a farm, consult your County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Training With a Bang

OPENING A SECOND FRONT will be the job of troops seasoned to the shocks of war. That is why the British troops shown in these pictures are being trained today, not only to be efficient with their own weapons, but also to know what it feels like to be "blitzed." At left, a plane has just screamed low over their heads in an "attack," and now a mine is detonated right in front to simulate the burst of the "dive-bomb." Above tank men in low-slung fast British Valentines feel what it's like to have two very close explosions. Below, infantry literally "go through fire" as part of a two-week course at a Battle School in South-East England. When the time is ripe for the Second Front, they will know what to do.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

Both here and in England, millions of people seem to consider themselves completely qualified experts on military tactics and strategy. They know precisely what is wrong with the United Nations' High Commands, and they are convinced that they could remedy matters in short order if they were put in charge. That widespread attitude underlies the aggressive demand that the British and the American's immediately open a second front in Europe.

In theory, the second front would be of immense benefit to the Allied cause. It would divert men and machines and supplies from Hitler's Russian and African offensives. It would give the conquered people of France their opportunity to rise up against their conqueror and help destroy him. It would mark the start of a real effort to break Axis power at home—where Axis power must eventually be broken.

So much for theory. In actual fact, opening the second front now would be one of the most hazardous operations in all military history. According to all reports, the Germans have done wonders in fortifying their continental positions. In France alone, they have about 300,000 seasoned troops which have been rigorously trained in preparation for an Allied invasion. These troops have abundant equipment of the first quality and they have plenty of air support. Their supply lines are secure, and they lie across land, not across water. The Germans have massed gigantic amount of heavy artillery, much of it taken from the Maginot line, along the French coast, and every possible invasion point is a fortress.

As military history proves again and again, an over-water invasion of enemy-held territory is the most difficult of all martial operations—even after their complete victory at Dunkirk, when British military power was all but destroyed, the

4. THE POWER TRANSMISSION SYSTEM

These parts depend on the driver to help them give satisfactory service. Misuse of the clutch will cause premature wear of that part, and will put unnecessary strain on the transmission and differential. Service maintenance should include clutch pedal adjustment, proper lubrication, and a regular cleaning of the transmission and differential. Dirt and metal scraps endanger the gears in these parts and will damage them if allowed to remain.

FACTS

HYPOID GEAR LUBRICANTS are not alike; do not mix brands. CLUTCHES and TRANSMISSIONS vary radically in models and makes of cars. Do not let any one but an expert service or adjust them. A SLIPPING CLUTCH wastes gasoline, may fall when you need power most.

SERVICING

When you have your car lubricated every 1,000 miles, authorize your dealer to check and add (if necessary) lubricants to the clutch, transmission and differential. Twice a year, have the transmission and differential completely cleaned and refilled with new oil of the correct grade.

This is the fourth in a series of articles on the care of your car.

Nazi generals didn't feel confident enough of success to make the attempt. The enemy positions must be "softened" first by days and perhaps weeks of artillery fire—and guns do not exist which can adequately shell the German positions from the British side of the Channel. As a substitute for artillery, dive bombers would have to be used—and their losses would be enormous.

The losses in men which would follow when the stage of landing operations was reached, is also staggering. Without artillery support, the landing troops would have to advance against completely shielded defenders with a vast superiority in firepower. Writing in Collier's, Quentin Reynolds, one of the best informed of war correspondents, draws a vivid and probably accurate picture when he says: "Let those who shout loudest for the immediate establishment of a second front in France... visualize for a moment the cost, in equipment and life. Let them visualize the waters of the Channel running blood red under a white moon, and let them visualize the bodies of thousands of British and American soldiers floating in those waters. If the persuasive eloquence of the second-front brigade is followed, no other result is possible."

This does not mean that a second front is impossible. To the contrary every really informed military man is convinced that one will be opened in time. But it cannot be opened until everything is ready. That means that, first, there must be many more bombings of Germany and the Continent on the Cologne scale. It means that Allied troops must be given more and better equipment than they now possess. And it means that ways must be found of causing distracting trouble for Germany at home.

Some experts believe that airpower alone may create a second front. They look forward to a time when three, four, five thousand major bombers will be used nightly in raids against the Axis. Major de Seversky is the most eloquent exponent of this doctrine and his recent best seller, "Victory Through Air Power," is a convincing work. The problems involved here are those of production, supply and coordination and the last two are even more important than the first. We are producing planes on an ever-increasing scale. We have not yet solved the difficulties that lie in taking them, their fuel, their crews and their parts to the battlefronts and keep them flying.

In any event, many of those who demand a second front at once are terribly misinformed. The High Command has not opened a second front simply because it knows that the time is not yet ripe—and because it also knows that the United Nations must not be subjected to another defeat of the Dunkirk, Singapore, Philippines, and East Indies variety. A great amount of groundwork lies ahead before we can really start a sustained offensive drive of any kind against either Germany or Japan.

Before long, definite action to impose a ceiling on wages is likely to be taken, either by Congress or by presidential directive. Washington is really worried about inflation. It is obviously impossible to control and fix prices so long as wages rise. In addition, wages must be limited if purchasing power is to be held down.

More and rigorous controls over the nation's man power in all directions is also to be anticipated. The time may come when workers will not be permitted to change jobs—and when employers will not be permitted to bid competitively for men. This isn't pleasant. But the exigencies of war may make it inevitable.

Supplies to Russia

THREE MILLION PAIRS OF BOOTS and 500,000 blankets are among the items made in Britain and sent to Russia. Eighty per cent of Britain's war production goes to battlefields abroad. Much of it goes to Russia—including planes, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition, and radio equipment—in large convoys which have battled their way through by Arctic routes despite storms, ice, U-boats and enemy submarines. Fifty British-made tanks are being sent each week, and 111 airplanes for every hundred that were produced in Russia.

In addition, British railways have sent 142 locomotives and 1,000 freight cars to carry goods to Russia over the railway across Persia. In Persia, a British-sponsored non-profit organization has built special assembly plants which, by last January, were assembling trucks at the rate of 200 per month. This picture shows one convoy of these trucks winding its way up a Persian river valley on its 3-day journey northward to Russia, loaded with Allied supplies.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that proper treatment is wiser than neglect. For Doan's Pills, Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. Gertrude Eleanor Milliken

Born Dec. 10, 1866 Died Aug. 3, 1942

Mrs. Milliken was the eldest daughter of William Ladd and Sarah Eleanor (Frost) Chapman of Bethel.

She was educated in the schools of Bethel and after graduating from Gould Academy she entered the Maine General Hospital in Portland for training for the position of nurse, and for a long time she was called "The Little Nurse." She was very successful in her work and in after years as a doctor's wife she was an active worker in her profession.

Some years has been poor for her health and the winters have been spent with her sister, Mrs. Gould, in South Portland. But summers her love for the hills and valleys of Bethel brought her back to enjoy the homes and companionship of her two sisters here. Her greetings to old friends ever gave a thrill of pleasure, they were so genuine. It was indeed hard for her to give up "doing things" with her hands for those about her.

She was a sincere lover of books and pictures, and letters from her were vivid with word paintings of lovely buildings and rugged mountains silhouetted against a wonderful colored sky or a country road wandering afar. Her keen eyes saw beauty everywhere and shared it with friends.

No children were ever born to her but an adopted daughter shared her heart and home and received all the love and advantages a mother could devise.

Her near relatives are her daughter, Mrs. Herman Joy, and three grandsons of Addison; three sisters, Mrs. Oliver Gould of South Portland, Mrs. Mary Wilson and Mrs. Robert Kirk of Bethel; one brother, Gilman Chapman of Berlin, N. H.; one aunt, Mrs. Susan Frost Edwards of Bethel; and several nieces and nephews; also a wide circle of friends, some whose close friendship reaches back to childhood days.

Funeral services are held at Greenleaf's funeral home this afternoon, Rev. H. T. Wallace officiating. Interment is at Riverside Cemetery.

The flood tide of bitter sadness Over our hearts doth sweep— Oh list! there's a tender message— God giveth His children sleep.

Yes! when weary and worn with striving When life's pathway has grown too steep— When they falter 'neath pain's fierce torture God giveth His children sleep.

And they rest from their weary struggle In green pastures by still waters deep. Oh! sad hearts, it's a blessed assurance, God giveth His children sleep.

And somewhere in God's fair home land From which none ever roam All shall awake from the sleep He giveth

And forever be happy at home. Addie Kendall Mason Bethel, August 6th, 1942.

WEST BETHEL UNION CHAPEL

Rev. Don Fife, Minister
We've been thinking recently in our worship services about becoming worth something in God's riches, about experiencing the power of the presence of God in our lives, about developing wings of faith so that we might fly above life's difficulties. Thus, it is important that we consider the ways and means by which these things might happen here, in our very own personality. We shall deal with this phase of our Christian experience this Sunday at our 11 a. m. worship our, when we discuss: "Christian Discipline." An athlete gets himself into condition by disciplined training, our boys in the army and navy, etc., are made efficient through discipline, and it is well recognized that proper disciplining moulds more perfect children. Your life can have added power and efficiency through "discipline."

In the evening at 7:30 we shall consider the Lord's Prayer phrase: "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." Are you following these enlargements of the thoughts in the greatest prayer of all time?

The Hi-School Fellowship will meet at the home of Miss Marguerite Sherman and Miss Beulah Conniver on the Bog Road near West Bethel on Thursday evening, Aug. 13, at 7:30. We shall be led in our thinking, and treated to refreshments by our hostesses.

A reminder: after this Sunday, there will be only four Sundays remaining in which regular services, morning and evening are to be held in your church. Plan to attend as many as possible, and remember to bring your neighbor along with you.

Sunday School has been meeting regularly at 10 each Sabbath. Jacqueline Lathrop, Charles Smith and John Head each repeated the books of the New Testament from memory last Sunday.

GILEAD CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. Don Fife, Minister

The people of Gilead, and their friends, are cordially invited to take advantage of the remaining services of worship to be held in their church at 6 o'clock, on Sundays. We have had a noticeable increase in attendance lately, and invite others to join us as we worship together.

The Gilead Church School will not meet on Wednesday, Aug. 12, but shall meet the following week, Aug. 19, at the regular 11:15 hour. We've been having a fine attendance of one dozen, even for the last few weeks. Let's keep up the loyal spirit, and we'll gain from it.
